FOUNDERS DAY OBSERVED BY MEMBERS

Parent-Teacher Association Present Program At Harvard High

"The Parent-Teacher association is the only organization that touches the heartstone of every home," were the words of Mrs. C. E. Hutchinson, prominent Glendale resident, club woman, Parent-Teacher association leader and chairman of founders' day for first district Parent-Teacher association, when she paid tribute to founders of Parent-Teacher association last night at the largest founders' day celebration ever held by Glendale federation Parent-Teacher associations. The affair was held at Harvard High school and the large company of parents and friends assembled not only enjoyed a splendid program, but had a part in aiding the Glendale federation to raise approximately $65 for the national extension fund.

Much praise is due Mrs. L. D. Torrey, program chairman of the federation, who with the assistance of program chairmen of the thirteen associations, arranged a program, fine both from the point of view of talent and because it was carried out without any waits and was completed by 9:30 o'clock. Preceding the program Mrs. O. H. Spradling, president of Glendale federation, introduced Mrs. J. Wesley Lee of Long Beach, president of the first district, who gave brief greeting; and Mrs. C. E. Hutchinson of Glendale, who also spoke in tribute to the founders.

The program was a medley of entertainment features, each one different, yet each one deserving of the hearty applause received. Those taking part were Jean Fitch, Grand View school; Divina Wood and Major Cowie, Cerritos; Nellie Alshire, Central; Louise and Alice Torrey, Acacia; Marie Brown, Colorado; Theodore Hirsch, George Okey, Peyton Baer, Iussell Andrews, Edwin Woodford, Walter Cast, Fredric Dunlap, Curtis McPadden, Ethlyn Jean Flesman, Helen Rosenberg, Barbara Clay, Marjorie Packard, Josephine Mosley, Mildred Allen, Virginia Lloyd, Katherine Doane, Glendale Intermediate; William Brower, Doran; Maxine Guiley.

Writes Poem

W. A. GRAY, author of "Heroes of the Air," who is visiting in Glendale.

W. A. Gray, Tacoma man who wrote the poem "Heroes of the Air," is now a visitor in Glendale and likes Southern California so well that he will return to the northern city only long enough to pack up his family and bring them to the land of sunshine to live. The poem that made Mr. Gray famous was written in commemoration of the epochal flight of Lieutenant Lowell Smith and his companions around the world. The poem, which follows in full, has been set to music by John Clover, of the thirtieth infantry band, stationed at the Presidio. The song has been renamed "For America."

At a time when people were all birds from the U. S. Army rose and began that hazardous flight to conquer nations' aerial flight.

Full realizing the price to pay, if aught went wrong in any way they vowed they'd win, I heard them say.

Another feat for the U. S. A. Alaska's snowcapped north the sun, Collects her toll by holding one.

Then Lowell Smith made solemn it must be done, he'd show them how.

And out across the mighty sea, Passing lands of treachery, Encountering typhoon and choppy waves,

A test it was, of the true and brave, Through Siam and India's sun, Where noble hearts the race would run.

They all braced up and went on through, What it took American blood to do, Britain saw them come, and go,

Heading for that icy foe, They made it safe to foot's end shore, From there to Greenland and Labrador.

As they pass Newfoundland, on their way, To home sweet home, and the U. S. A. But still high in the air they soar, They're heroes now for evermore.

With sturdiness and sand they stayed, The greatest odds that were ever played, With luck and pluck they worked and won, The grandest feat beneath the sun.

It was no more for the love alone, Of sweetheart, wife, or folks at home, Than it was for the Stars and Stripes you see, Their devotion and their loyalty.

"For America, our propellers ring, To you, for you, this feat we bring, We're glad we're back from land and sea, And now preserve tranquility."

DETAIL IN SURVEY NECESSARY, CLAIM

M. N. Alderman, Engineer in Charge, Stresses Vital Need of Statistics

The co-operation of all productive commercial concerns in Glendale in expediting the work of Glendale's industrial survey is asked, according to M. N. Alderman, industrial engineer in charge of the survey, who completed the mailing of questionnaires yesterday. Each productive industry is expected to fill out one of the questionnaires, and if a blank is not provided within several days it is requested that the Chamber of Commerce be notified.

Quick return of the questionnaires completely and carefully filled in, will aid the survey work greatly, Mr. Alderman said. All information submitted on these blanks will be treated as confidential as far as individual cases are concerned. Only total figures will be made public.

In pointing out the advantages of the statistical work now being undertaken, Mr. Alderman stressed the following points: "Each company's products will be listed in a manufacturers' and wholesalers' directory with publicity and will be filled with purchasing agents throughout the present and potential markets."

"Each business will be supported and tied with a 'Patronize Home Industry Campaign.' Although individual figures will be confidential, they will be combined with those of other industries and totals will give a substantially accurate industrial measure of this community to those interested."

"Complete data are essential as a basis from which to determine the advantages and disadvantages of this industrial area as compared to others, and to determine new industrial opportunities. A general check-up of factors affecting the operating costs and markets will be made to aid each concern."

"An accurate, complete, industrial survey of the Glendale-Los Angeles industrial area is a competitive necessity if we are to make sure and greatest headway in industrial work. Principal communities in this district have completed such a survey, and in many cases substantial industrial growth has followed," Mr. Alderman concluded.

GREATEST TUNNEL AID TO GLENDALE

City Manager Stone Says City Will Profit By Edison Bore

Completion of the great bore connecting Florence lake with Huntington lake means that Glendale will never face another power shortage, according to City Manager Virgil B. Stone, and vindicates his judgment of last summer, when, in the face of strenuous opposition, he recommended to the City Council that no steps be taken to build a municipal generating plant.

"Few people realize the significance of this great engineering accomplishment," he said. "Not only is it the greatest tunnel in the world, but it establishes a world record for speed. Last summer, when I made an official trip of inspection to Huntington lake, the best estimate they could furnish was that the two ends of the bore would meet March 1. They met yesterday, nearly two weeks ahead of time."

"Glendale has cause for rejoicing over the completion of this great project, along with every other city in Southern California. It means the permanent removal of the worst menace to progress and prosperity we have ever faced."

THE CABINET IN CONGRESS

Several bills have been introduced in Congress in the last ten or twelve years providing that members of the cabinet should have seats in the two houses of Congress with the right of debate in matters relating to their respective departments and with the duty to respond to inquiries propounded by the members of Congress. In fact, a Virginia congressman has introduced such a bill in the House of Representatives at each session since 1913. A similar measure was introduced in 1864 and again in 1881 and many of our national leaders, including Presidents Taft and Wilson and Secretary Hughes, have favored the general purpose of such legislation, but there has been a consistent opposition to the bill among members of Congress who contend that such a step would be a violation of the constitutional separation of the three departments of government—executive, legislative and judicial.

The framers of the constitution very wisely provided for three departments of government, their purpose being a distribution of power. The wisdom of this is very apparent, and the people of the United States expressed themselves very forcibly at the last election against a plan to transfer power from the judicial to the legislative department. But there is nothing in the constitution or in logic that would prohibit the closest co-operation and co-ordination between the three departments, each one jealously guarding its own powers, of course.

Members of the cabinet would, naturally, be more conversant with the affairs of their own portfolios than members of Congress. It would seem that Senators and Representatives would welcome the point of view of the cabinet head and any information that he could give upon any pending legislation. Such co-operation would not be taking power from any department to give it to another.

Congressman Montague of Virginia says in The World's Work regarding this bill: "We should employ common sense in working our institutions. The executive or his representatives should be brought face to face with the representatives of the legislature in a common public forum, thereby substituting publicity for privacy, and direct for indirect co-operation, educating the cabinet, the Congress and the people, evolving leadership and dissipating abuse and suspicion. The atmosphere of government would be cleared and the legislature and administration would move upon a higher and a nobler plane."

Chester H. Rowell in a newspaper article says the proposal to have cabinet officers personally present and debate the administration measures on the floor of Congress would give us fewer, better and prompter laws, and more responsible and intelligent decisions on them.

THE DARK SIDE OF PROHIBITION

It would be amusing, were it not so serious, to contemplate the lengths to which some people will go to prove that prohibition cannot be enforced. An investigator, who has been writing a series of articles for a magazine which chooses, editorially, to look on the dark side of the prohibition question, tells of visits to various sections of the country and represents conditions everywhere as of the worst. His story would, indeed, be disheartening if it were not so evident that he wishes to give, and is giving, but one side of the question. But, in spite of this dark picture, we know that there are people who do not make, buy or use intoxicating liquor of any kind and who never did.

This investigator does not sound quite sincere when, after his one-sided presentation of the question, he pleads for some way to conserve the real benefits of prohibition "without at the same time depriving a judge, a police sergeant, numerous patrolmen and Volstead agents, certain higher officials, many druggists, many physicians, a large section of the populace, and even a priest."

That a large section of the populace is engaged in breaking the prohibition law is a statement that may well be challenged. And, further, the prohibition law or any other agency cannot deprave anyone who is already depraved.

PULPIT AND PRESS

Controversy in Chicago between the churches and other organizations on one hand and the newspapers on the other in regard to the publication of crime news is waxing warm. Several organizations, including the churches and the Christian Century, have asked that the newspapers for a period of at least one month "give the news of life as a whole in its true perspective and proportions, day by day, as the possibilities of professional journalism, free from the unprofessional exploitation of vice and crime and partisan propaganda under the guise of news relating to questions of public policy."

The newspapers are defending the exploitation of crime upon the theory that suppressing this news would tend to encourage and increase the commission of crime. But the pulpits come back with the charge that crime is on the increase and asks if the newspapers are entirely altruistic and if they really give so much space to crime for the sole purpose of discouraging it. They believe that if crime is given publicity it should be pictured as hateful, as it is, and not made attractive. Mawkish stories about every member of the criminal's family to the third and fourth generation are not necessary nor can they be effective in preventing crime.

METHODS OF DETECTIVES

Efforts of detectives and police officers in tracing criminals are often the subject of ridicule and abuse, since their methods are sometimes puerile and futile and calculated to do anything but find the guilty one. But, in the case of a recent murder in Chicago, detectives are to be commended and congratulated. An abandoned pistol was the only clue to the murderers. The pistol was made in Germany and the detectives traced it to a New York importing house and from there to a Chicago store. This firm had expressed it to a station on the Chicago & Northwestern railway. But it had been stolen in transit. It was traced to the car in which it had been shipped. In the same car the same firm had shipped some silver plates. The police found the plates in the home of the messenger on that car, they checked up on his associates and in a short time had arrested the four men who were responsible for the murder.

More reason and logic in running down clues of this kind would help to end the reign of crime.

THE PRESIDENT'S OTHER MECHANICAL DOBBIN

The Stranger

By DR. FRANK CRANE

After all, no better term has been formed for man than that he is "a pilgrim and a stranger" on this planet.

It is easy for us to get egocentric ideas and think the world was made for mankind, and especially for ourselves.

It is well once in a while to take another view of things, to inject ourselves possibly into the viewpoint of other creatures.

So doing, man discovers that he is not regarded with a friendly eye by any other creature that God has made, except, perhaps, the dog.

You have noticed in the woods how all wild things run away from you.

There is probably more life under the surface of the ocean than above it, and yet all that life is alien to man.

Perhaps this fear that other creatures have for us is well founded. We use them for our meat and for our slaves. We take their life, and restrain their liberty, without any maudlin sentiment. Man is the tyrant of the universe.

It is rare to find one who has broken down this barrier and has become friendly with the other creatures, a man of whom the birds are not afraid, and with whom the animals form a companionship.

Daniel Henderson, in a recent book of poems, says:

"Races whose titles run from God
Dispute my warrant to the soil!
I am intruder! I am Danger!
Familiar, but for aye—the Stranger!"

Most animals are shy creatures. Perhaps they have reason for being so. And it takes a good deal of effort to overcome the fear that is inbred in their blood and make them friendly to us.

Have you ever watched a bird eating? John Burroughs tells us of how all birds look up and around between bites. They are looking for possible enemies. Their ancestors have for years and centuries been used to foes, and it takes them a long while to get used to kindness.

Kindness to all creatures should be taught children. They will gain many human values by being kind to birds and animals, for civilization is founded upon an increase of pity.

The Best of Advice

By CLARK KINNARD

Man is explicable by nothing less than all his history.

Emerson first put this thought in print. A thousand years before one Dionysius of Halicarnassus said:

"History is philosophy teaching by examples."

Natural history, civil history, the history of art and the history of literature—all must be explained from individual history, or must remain words.

As Emerson put it, "There is nothing that is related to us, nothing that does not interest us—kingdom, college, tree, horse, or iron shoe, the roots of all things are in man."

"It is in the soul that architecture exists. Santa Croce and the Dome of St. Peter are the same copies after a divine model. Strasbourg Cathedral is a material counterpart of the soul of Erwin of Steinbach."

"The true poem is the poet's mind; the true ship is the ship-builder."

"In the man, should we lay him open, we should see the reason for the last flourish and tendril of his work, as every spine and tint in the sea-shell pre-exist in the secreting organs of the fish. The whole of heraldry and chivalry is in courtesy. A man of fine manners shall pronounce your name with all the ornament that titles of nobility could ever add."

There is no age or state of society or mode of action in history to which there is not one somewhat corresponding in a man's life. Everything tends to abbreviate itself and yield its whole virtue to him.

"Man should see that he can live all history in his own person," Emerson opined.

He was always coming up with facts that have moved us in history in our private experience and verifying them here.

All history becomes subjective; in other words, there is properly no history, but Biography."

The world exists for the education of each man.

Everything the individual sees without him corresponds to his states of mind, and everything is in turn intelligible to him, as his outward thinking leads him into the truth to which that fact or series belongs.

Who's Who

The spectacular crash of Camillo Castiglione has made him the most notable figure of the hour in Europe.

Castiglione—"Camillo the Magnificent," "the Hyena of the Italian," "the Ponzis of Austria"—drew nicknames by the mere fact of his spectacular rise to wealth and power. It was a tremendous rise, limitless, it seemed, until it tried to push through J. P. Morgan & Co.

The war found Castiglione, son of a Trieste rabbi, a clerk in a rubber factory. He leaped into every profiteering scheme he could and when the war ended he had money. Ruthlessly he played the currency of his country for a fall. He won and elected to become an Italian citizen, Trieste having been transferred to Italy, and he became a friend of Mussolini.

Meanwhile he was helping to ride the German mark down hill and he came out of that with another fortune and more prestige. He was the partner of Stinnes, the patron of Max Reinhardt, the husband of one of Vienna's most popular actresses, and other aristocrats.

Then the stars, in which he believed with barbaric superstition, turned against him. It had been easy and profitable to ruin German and Austrian currency. Why could not the same thing be done in France?

He started it last spring and succeeded in creating a panic in Paris. He had helped from his fellow speculators, of course, and the franc began to fall.

But the Morgan loan pegged it and even raised it a little again, and thus Castiglione received the first check of his life. His whole structure of banks, factories and stock companies went to pieces.

RICE STOCK LOW

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 19.—It is expected that the stocks of rice now on hand will be exhausted before the end of March. Porto Rico will want about 800,000 pounds of the remaining supply, leaving only about 1,100,000 for domestic needs until the next crop is available in September. The best grades of blue rice are bringing 6 1/2 cents a pound.

HELMET HATS

PARIS, Feb. 19.—More and more the small hats are taking on the appearance of the round helmet of Charlemagne's time. Made of ribbons and picot straw, they have the short brim, turned back like a visor and the rounded top terminating in a ribbon bow or tuft of feathers.

Railway service in Sumatra is poor, but excellent highways make motor travel pleasant.

AIRPLANE DUSTING

ATLANTA, Feb. 19.—The largest commercial airplane dusting service in the world will be located in this state before the next cotton-growing season. Eighteen planes will be stationed at strategic points east of the Mississippi. Each will carry for the protection of plants on 6000 to 7000 acres. Five airplanes of calcium arsenate, to kill the boll weevil, will be dusted on all cotton under the contract at a cost of about $7 an acre.

LABOR LEADERS

CLEVELAND, Feb. 19.—Labor leaders, employers and employment bureau heads all are warning workers here to hang on to their jobs. Although increasing business is looked for, there has been no spurt and operations are not so high as a month ago. There are 100 applicants for each vacancy.

More than 400 service units are now included in the chain of "S. O. These service units operate more than seven hundred tow cars. Sixty per cent of the members of the club make use of one of the four types of road service during the year, according to figures compiled by the Accounting Department.

NEW HUPP MODEL EIGHT HAS GLASS

So Says Local Agent Who Ascribes Success to Motor, Body Lines

Much of the sweeping popularity of the Hupmobile eight is due to the remarkably compact motor and the graceful body lines of open and closed models alike, declares W. V. White of 228 South Brand boulevard, Glendale manager for H. W. Swanson, Glendale and Hollywood distributor of Hupmobile fours and eights.

"We have the car in our showrooms," says Mr. White, "and we invite the public to come and make comparisons. There are many fine points about this superior car that warrant knowing about, before making a purchase of any automobile. The buyer should know, for instance, that though it is a line eight, the hood on the Hupmobile eight is no longer than that on the average six."

"Another thing is the class of the car. It breathes distinction in every line. Mechanically perfect, the Hupmobile is, as well, artistically perfect. It is a joy to drive this car, both for its performance and for its beauty."

"This Hupmobile eight is turned out in a special factory devoted exclusively to this model and every man who works on the car is an expert in that particular model. This makes for perfection and accounts for its popularity."

BRANCH OF CLUB INVITES MEMBERS

Local Division of L. A. Body
Promises Every Service
And Insurance

Safe, low-priced driving protection is offered by the Los Angeles Automobile association, declares J. W. Botsford, local manager, whose offices are at 498 South Brand boulevard. Official Glendale garages of the concern are located as follows:

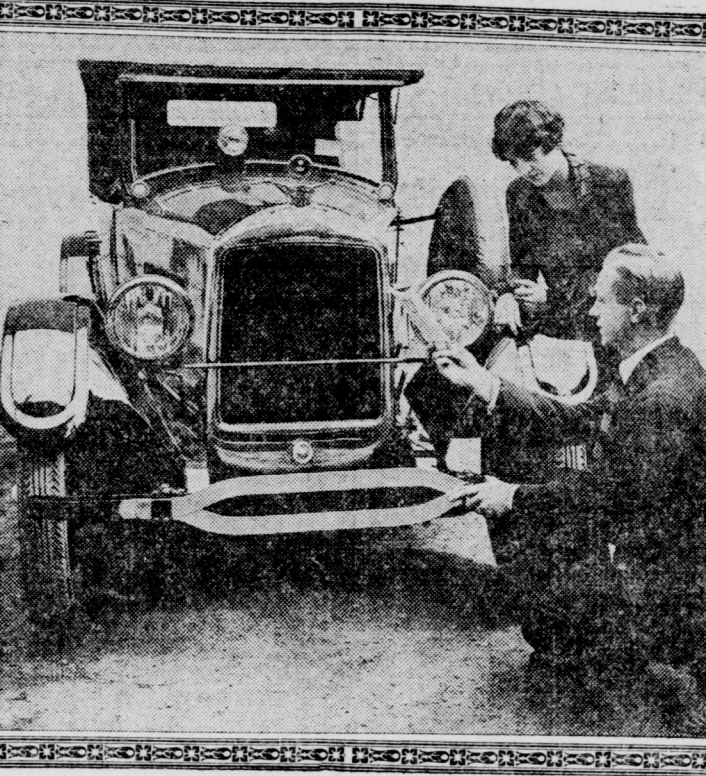

Maryland garage, 125 North Maryland avenue; Betty & Gray, 802 East Colorado boulevard; La Fayette garage, 1414 East Colorado boulevard.

"Our membership and insurance entitle motorists to every service any automobile club can furnish," says Mr. Botsford. "In joining the Los Angeles Automobile association, you are affiliating yourself with men who have helped materially in bringing about better motoring conditions in Southern California."

"One of the many features offered is lower insurance rates, with absolute protection. I will be glad to go into detail in regard to the many benefits of this association, at my offices, at any time."

Safety Devices Cut Premium

Safety features on a car are a great driving help as well as a saving in insurance costs. A Western Auto salesman is pointing out the fact that bumpers decrease collision insurance 12½ per cent.

More automobiles were stolen in the United States last year than all the cars owned in Germany, Austria, Turkey and Bulgaria. Many were also destroyed by fire and accident. It is consequently not surprising that various forms of insurance coverage have been devised to protect the owners against loss.

The most common forms of insurance are collision, fire and theft. You can buy fire coverage for your car without theft but not theft without fire. If you rent your car out to someone else your insurance is no longer valid.

Extra tires are covered under the terms of many policies, providing they are spare tires at the time of their theft. If they are left in the garage or not directly attached to the car they are not considered spares. The insurance underwriters allow 15 per cent discount from the theft premium if the car is equipped with an approved locking device other than attached by the manufacturer.

On collision insurance a liberal discount is given if the car is equipped with bumpers that have been approved by the underwriters' laboratories. A front bumper discounts the premium 10 per cent. Bumpers, front and rear, reduce the insurance 12½ per cent. Fire insurance will be cut 15 per cent, too, if the car is supplied with a fire extinguisher.

A trip to a Western Auto Supply Co. store will reveal many accident preventers as well as the accessories which reduce the insurance premiums.

MONTROSE NOTES

MONTROSE, Feb. 19.—The marriage of Miss Edith Brown to Ezra Miller, both of Montrose, was solemnized Saturday night in the new Episcopal church of St. Luke's of the Mountains. Miss Pearl MacClellan played the wedding march. Miss Irene Wadey, an aunt of the bride, sang "I Love You Truly, Dear," to the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march. The group was attended by Thomas Fox of Los Angeles as best man. Canon Renison officiated.

The bride was attired in white frock trimmed with tiny ruffles and wore a long tulle veil with high ruffled back, the front being a coronet of orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and white sweet peas. Her only jewels were a pearl necklace a gift of the groom.

The bride was attended by her sister, Elizabeth, dressed in pink georgette carrying pink sweet peas, her bridesmaid, Miss Marie Wadey, was attired in shaded green georgette trimmed with ostrich feathers and she carried a bouquet of white and shell pink carnations. Mrs. Frances Brown, mother of the bride, was in black satin with pearls. The little flower girl, Phoebe Irene Brown, sister of the bride, was a picture in white crepe de chine, carrying a basket of sweet peas.

After the ceremony a reception was held for the guests numbering around 100. The bride cake was cut by the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Miller, after a short honeymoon trip, will reside in Montrose until spring when they will motor to Pennsylvania, where Mrs. Phillips' parents live.

The church was decorated by the members of the Guild of St. Luke's of the Mountains of which the bride is a member, the windows being hidden under curtains of acacia and asparagus fern. The altar was massed with pink and white carnations with pink sweet peas and also white carnations with asparagus fern entwined the base of the reading desk and the flower stand. The organ was banked with acacia blossoms. Tall candles were ablaze on the altar. It was the first wedding in the new church.

Mrs. Miller was the recipient of many beautiful gifts. Among the guests were friends who had come from Imperial valley and the bride's maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. G. Wadey of Los Angeles, who celebrated their golden wedding anniversary last autumn.

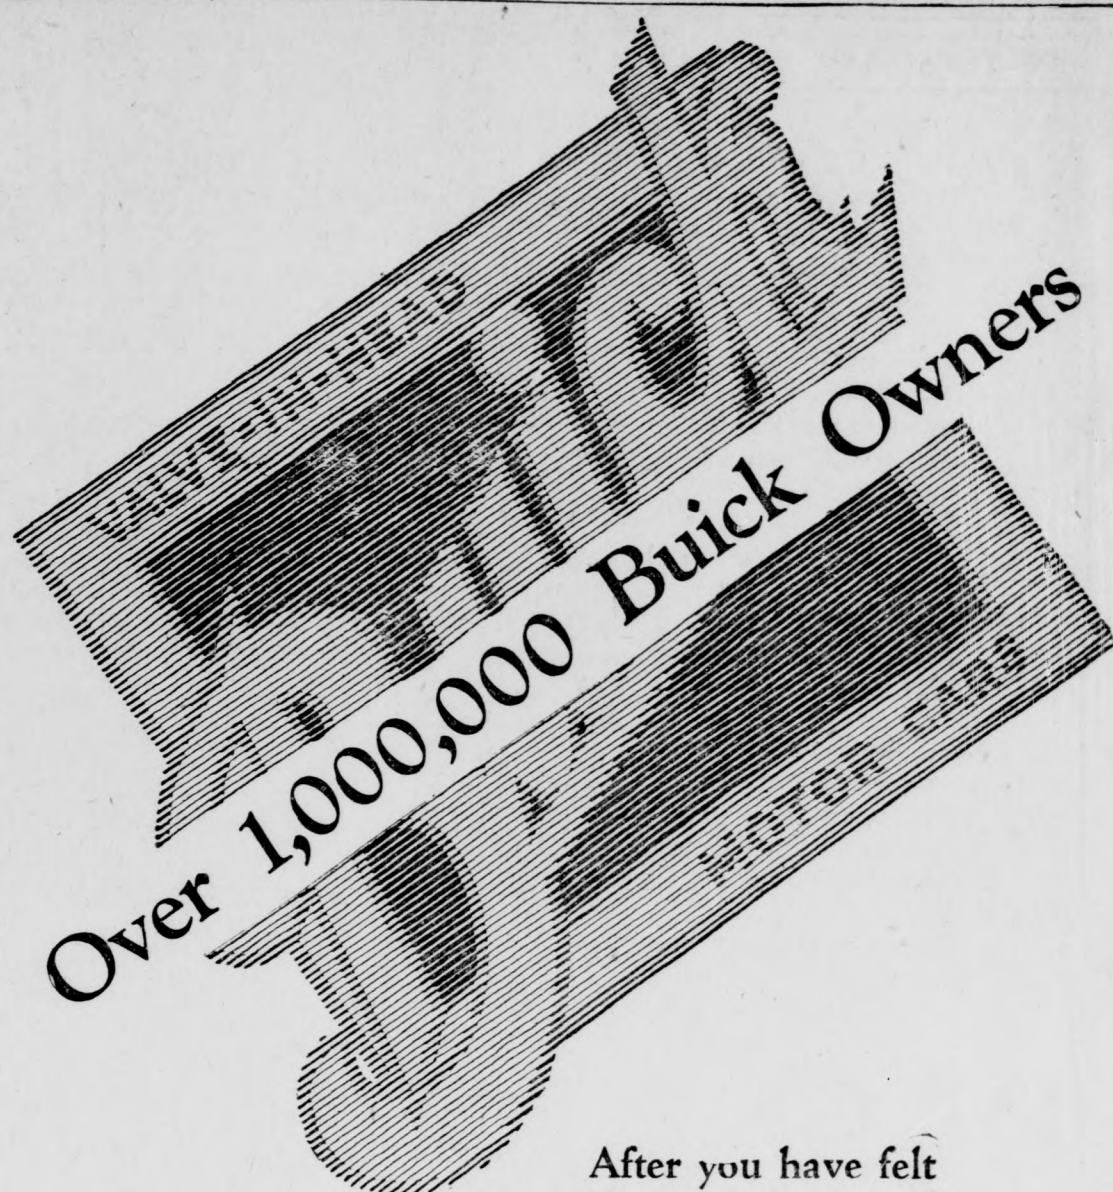

Mrs. A. B. Cochran of East Montrose avenue will entertain on Thursday with a pink luncheon and bridge party in honor of her house guest, Mrs. F. Kirkpatrick of San Francisco.

Mrs. Hiram Cox will be the hostess at a silver tea at her home at 755 Walton street, tomorrow afternoon. The affair which is given for the Ladies' Aid of the Montrose M. E. church, will be from 2 to 5. A cordial invitation is extended to all women of the valley to attend.

BURBANK NEWS

BURBANK, Feb. 19.—This city is watching with interest the work of the Los Angeles Park commission, whose president, Van M. Griffith, last night outlined the six parks the commission is working on, at a meeting of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of the San Fernando valley. The meeting was held in Burbank.

The six sites named by President Griffith are: Lankershim and Ventura boulevards, end of Laurel Canyon road, Plummer street and Pacoima wash, Owens-mouth, Chatsworth and San Fernando. A map showing these and many other proposed park sites in the San Fernando valley has been prepared by the Los Angeles Park commission.

Al Dymond, who hails from Wilkesbarre, Pa., is especially glad that he is now living in Southern California since he received a clipping from his old home paper giving a long list of sub-zero weather data which has obtained in and around Wilkesbarre. It ranges all the way from 10 to 30 degrees below zero.

Mrs. Walter C. Fisher was endorsed by the Women's club for the position of recording secretary of the Los Angeles district home.

The Appeal of the Packard Eight

It is a significant fact that owners of the Packard Eight are invariably known in their communities as men of taste and discernment.

The trim grace of line that is Packard's and the charm and comfort of Packard appointments quickly commend themselves to those who have a natural appreciation of the finer things of life.

Men of judgment and discrimination recognize in the Packard the expression of their own ideals. They are as appreciative of the smartness and distinction of the Packard Eight as they are of the thoroughbred performance which is inherently a Packard attribute.

SALES FORCE OUT TO MAKE RECORD

Eighteen Cars Are Sold In Eighteen Days, Reports Lyman P. Clark

All the indications around the salesrooms of the Glendale Motor Car Co. establishment at 124 West Colorado street point to a big year during 1925, according to Lyman P. Clark, the president.

For one thing, the new dealer license plates that have been issued to the firm bear the number 1925, and Mr. Clark declares that he has always predicted that this year was going to be the period during which he would show his biggest gains in the sales of Chrysler and Maxwell cars.

"Since I got the new dealer plates," he says, "I have been strengthened in my belief that the luck is going to stick close to us all through the year, and, with the new models in both lines setting the motoring world on fire with enthusiasm, I can't see anything but the finest kind of results all year."

As tending to prove the contention that 1925 is going to be a big year, Mr. Clark and his sales force have set a goal of twenty-five cars to be sold during February, and each day the sales are chalked up on the blackboard. The first eighteen days of the month show that eighteen orders have been booked, of which fifteen have already been delivered to the firm's customers, and Mr. Clark and his men are confident that the figure that has been set will be left far behind before the month ends, as there are only seven sales to be made yet before the goal is reached.

Founders' Day Held By First District

Pacific; Mrs. Ettarae Kirk Kent, Wilson Intermediate; Grace Starkey, Broadway; Miss Gladys Levy, Magnolia; A. R. Burton, Columbus; Girls' Glee club, Broadway High school.

Following the program a huge white birthday cake was placed on a table in the center of the stage. Mrs. Spradling was mistress of ceremonies. The twenty-eight yellow candles were lighted by Mrs. Lee, Mrs. Hutchinson and past presidents of the federation and presidents of the various associations. The first candle was lighted by Mrs. Hutchinson, who gave a tribute to the founders. The twenty-eighth candle was lighted by Mrs. Lee with a prayer for 1925. Others taking part in the candle ceremony and giving bits of P-T-A. history, were Dr. Jessie A. Russell, first president of Glendale federation; Mesdames A. A. Barton, E. B. ## COMMENT by GIL A. COWAN

Pulling power of printer's ink is being demonstrated in Glendale's Dollar Day with a record Thursday shopping crowd in the business district.

The Glendale Evening News is glad of the opportunity to serve the merchants in making known their special offers, while readers of this paper are the people who BUY in Glendale.

More merchants could use the columns of The Glendale Evening News to advantage, provided they BACK their advertising with the goods. You will note that the prosperous business man keeps his window displays attractively, he treats his customers courteously, he has what they want, and he advertises the fact in the HOME TOWN daily newspaper.

Readers of The Glendale Evening News are commended to the advertisers in this paper.

Another thing which does much to make business life more active is good lighting. Glendale is fortunate in having numerous signs of evident prosperity in electricity, including the boulevard lights, store signs and window lights.

Strangers in the city note these things, perhaps, more than you suspect. And how sleepy a community looks that does not make the most of its advertising possibilities.

This writer recollects crossroads in Virginia and Louisiana that had no papers, no window displays, no electric signs.

And, by golly, they were dead centers.

The name Glendale attracts only as much attention as the California spirit adds to its life. There are a half dozen other Glendales—Oregon, Arizona, Maryland, Ohio, Colorado and some other state, we forget which, boasts of similarly named communities.

But how many times do you hear of these other Glendales?

We should ever keep the name of Glendale, Calif., before the public.

And now that hotel accommodations are becoming available for tourists, that fact should be broadcast. May we not suggest to the Chamber of Commerce that a list of hotels be sent district passenger agents of the transcontinental railways throughout the country?

TIRE FIRM GRANTS LIBERAL CREDITS

Erwin Smith Does Business On Basis That Humans Pay Their Debts

"The matter of extending credit to the average individual is not a hard one to figure out," says Erwin Smith, proprietor of the Smith Tire Co., 239 South Brand boulevard, "and especially in the granting of credit for automobile tires. The average auto owner is honest at heart and will always pay what he agrees to pay. If he has personal or business reverses, then he is inclined to be a little backward."

It is the policy of the Smith Tire Co. to grant the most liberal credit in the purchasing of Viking tires. In case of sickness or unemployment for reverses he claims he is always ready to meet his patrons more than half way.

highway construction to continue, they must impress this fact on their representatives in the legislature. If the Highway commission is not reformed in some manner at this session of the legislature, highway construction will have to stop and that means the people in all sections of the state will be unable to enjoy the further mileage of good roads.

"More adequate police protection must be given the state highways. There must be enforcement of the law against irresponsible truck owners and others to prevent overloading and consequent injury to the highways. Overloading will damage and destroy any highway that may be built."

"Many people often ask me such questions as:

"Why does not the highway commission construct this road or that road; why does not the highway commission widen certain roads, etc."

"My answers are invariably always the same—'There cannot be any work if there is no money to pay for it.'"

"The California Highway commission has always tried to adhere to the wishes of the people it serves and its policies have been:

Three Reasons

"1st: The completion of main trunk lines of highways, including certain of the most important inter-state connections.
"2nd: The maintenance in high class condition, with annual revenues of the improvements already installed. This includes the betterment of the highways widening of grades, elimination of curves, placing of rock shoulders, improvement of drainage conditions, etc.
"3rd: The reconstruction as fast as available funds will permit of existing highways as dictated by the condition of pavement and the requirements of traffic."

"My time has been limited and I have only been able to give you listeners a brief outline of highway commission work. You can all get an idea of the importance of good roads when I tell you that more than 10,122,000,000 miles were traveled in California during the past year by nearly 1,400,000 motor cars.
"In conclusion, let me again impress upon you that if you want improved highways, sit down tonight and write your senator and assemblyman at Sacramento and tell them about it. I know they will be glad to get your views at this time."

Questions on Climate In Southland Answered

Angeles (a fair criterion of Southern California) does not touch either the 80 or the 40 degree mark.

"Rain or windstorms practically never interfere with motoring. Rain of a quarter of an inch or more falls on a total of 16 days in the year. Picnics and out of door celebrations can be planned through the year with a certainty that is uncanny to the newcomer. February alone is a month of frequent rain, and in that month there is an average of 12 absolutely clear days, and 27 days of sunshine."

"Mr. Hannibal Hurst telephoned a while ago," she said. "He wanted you to come to his house immediately. I told him that Judge Graham had gone to Albany and would not be back before Tuesday."

"When did he call up?"

"About half-past eight."

"Did he say what he wanted?"

"No, but I thought, perhaps, you might wish to go in your uncle's place and find out."

Graham laughed. "When a man like Hannibal Hurst asks for a cannon he is not likely to be satisfied with a popgun."

"I hear that Mr. Hurst has a charming wife and a very beautiful daughter," proffered Miss Saxe, who spent her whole drab life gazing in, like a wistful Peri, at the gate of the fashionable world, and whose chief joy lay in talking of the people she could never talk to.

"They say," she added with a mental smack of the lips, "that the two young women do not agree any too well; that Miss Hurst resents her father's second marriage."

Graham, to whose sympathy the Miss Saxes of the world with their pittance of joy made a strong appeal, paused indulgently for an instant and put the expected "Why?"

"Well, there has been a good deal of speculation about Mrs. Hurst. Nobody seems to be able to find out who she was. There is a mystery somewhere."

The clock on the wall at the head of the stairs struck 9. Graham cut short further disclosures. The occupant of his overcoat, if a man of punctual habit, was already on the spot. Realizing the need for haste, Graham slammed the door quickly behind him and set his reluctant feet upon their quest.

The night had grown colder and wilder. Overhead dark wisps of cloud scudded across bright, far-away stars. As Graham turned out of the avenue into the street he caught a gust of icy wind swept down it, buffeting him roughly. To safeguard his threatened hat he instinctively threw up his hand and clutched it. As he did so the note, which he still held, was whisked from his grasp and whirled away into the avenue's wild vortex of wheels. In an instant it was gone past recovering. Fortunately he remembered the address. The contents of the note was stamped on his memory.

The house he was in search of stood in the middle of a block of laboriously individualized dwellings, alike only in their expression of competitive costliness. It was disquieting to find it dark—not with the darkness of drawn curtains behind which lurks a suggestion of color and light, but with an utter inky blackness.

Its darkened windows which looked out into the night with fixed, tragic stare of the blind, chilled and repelled him. He felt the same hesitancy in approaching this house that he would have felt in addressing some grim, taciturn stranger. A sense of the preposterousness of his action came over him. What sane or honest man, he asked himself, would appear at the door of so eminently respectable a house at 9 o'clock of a chill March night, demanding an overcoat taken from a cheap West-side restaurant? It was some consolation to feel that he was more likely to be taken for a lunatic than for a thief. He had not even the note now, he remembered, to offer in explanation of his errand. Only the thought of Philippa's distress should he fail to recover her bracelet kept him from immediate flight. The remembrance, however, drove him slowly up the steps. Even with his finger on the bell, he still lingered, staring helplessly at the brightly polished door knob which was the one high light on the vacant face of the darkened house.

Suddenly he leaned nearer—did his eyes deceive him, or was the door ajar? He stretched out his hand to make sure—the door yielded to his touch.

With the idea that his coat might be in the hall and that the exchange could be made unseen, he pushed the door gently open and slipped quickly into the house. As he did so darkness seemed to meet and envelop him. The remembered words of the lost note took on an ominous meaning. What was it, he found himself wondering, that had to be ended here? He knew that it was the nameless possibilities which the phrase conjured up that charged the darkness with alarms, but he could not reason away a sense of tragedy. Why, he questioned, was the house in absolute darkness? Why was the door ajar?

THE GATEWAY

An additional helpful hint for housewives was uncovered by Viola Dana during the filming of "Forty Winks" for Paramount under the direction of Paul Iribe and Frank Urson.

It was a hot day at the Lasky studio and all the "Forty Winks" players, including Miss Dana, Raymond Griffith, Theodore Roberts, Cyril Chadwick and Anna May Wong, sat around fanning themselves and wishing they were down by the sad but cool waves, fifteen miles from the studio.

"Of course, the heat is uncomfortable," said Miss Dana, "but I have it to thank for one thing, the ridding of ants from my home."

"Everyone was all attention. 'I tried every sort of poison to get rid of them but they wouldn't go,' she continued. 'Then one day I noticed a strange thing. There had been a paper bag full of popcorn kernels in the pantry. A mouse had chewed a hole in the bag and through this hole the ants were carrying away the popcorn, one kernel at a time. It was a tremendous load for an ant. I was interested and followed the line of march to the place where it led out into the yard. All about were lying fragments of dead ants. It appears that as soon as each ant and his burden reached the sunlight the heat of the sun caused the corn to pop and when it popped, Mr. Ant popped with it.'

"Finally, the entire bag of popcorn, or amaranthium, you might say, was gone. So I sent down to the store for a fresh supply and

UNCLE WIGGILY AND SAMMIE'S SNOW MAN

"Sammie Littletail!" squeaked the Lady Mouse Teacher in the hollow stump school one day. "Sammie Littletail, stand up, please!"

"I wasn't whispering, teacher! Truly, I wasn't!" exclaimed the little rabbit boy.

"I know you weren't whispering, Sammie," answered the Lady Mouse. "I asked you to stand up to spell me the word Fox."

"Oh, teacher! I'm a skairt to spell that word!" gasped Sammie, looking over his shoulder.

"Why are you frightened, Sammie?" asked the Lady Mouse.

"Because the Fox is always after Uncle Wiggily to nibble his ears," whispered Sammie. "And the Fox might nibble my name."

"Nonsense!" laughed the Lady Mouse. "The Fox isn't here now. Spell me the word, Sammie."

So Sammie, again looking over his shoulder, spelled the word Fox, and he did it so well that the teacher said:

"I will let you out of school early, Sammie. You may go now!"

Sammie was very glad to be let out of school early, but after he had skipped around in the snow for a while it wasn't so much fun as there were no other animal boys or girls with whom to play. For none of the others had been let out early.

"I know what I'll do," said Sammie. "I'll make a snow man near Uncle Wiggily's bungalow. Then if the Fox should come the snow man might scare him away."

The snow was soft and packed well, and Sammie, after rolling two balls, one for the head and the other for the body of the man, soon had made a white image, standing near the rabbit gentleman's bungalow. After Sammie had finished his snow man he heard the shouts and laughter of the other animal boys and girls coming from school.

"I'll go play slide down hill with them now," said Sammie, running off and leaving the snow man all alone. But pretty soon Uncle Wiggily came out of the bungalow. The bunny saw the snow man Sammie had made and the rabbit gentleman said:

"I'll play a joke on Nurse Jane. She has seen this snow man standing here. Now she has gone to the store. Before she comes back I'll knock this snow man all to pieces. Then I'll put a lot of snow all over myself, and I'll stand in the same place where the snow man stood. I'll make myself look just like a snow man, and when Nurse Jane comes along I'll jump at her and cry 'Boo!' and she'll be so surprised as never was!"

So Uncle Wiggily knocked apart Sammie's snow man, and stood himself in the place of it, covering himself with snow until the bunny looked like a white image. Then he waited for Nurse Jane to return from the store.

But before Nurse Jane came back along ran the Fuzzy Fox. From a hill not far away, the Fox had watched Sammie building the snow man. But the Fox had not seen what Uncle Wiggily did. So the Fox, coming softly down off the hill, neared the bunny's bungalow and the Fox said to himself:

"I'll hide behind the snow man that rabbit boy made. Uncle Wiggily will be sure to come out of his bungalow soon. He'll go up to the snow man to look at it. And when he does I'll catch him. So the Fox went up to what he thought was the snow man. Uncle Wiggily, himself, a snow man, hearing the footsteps, thought it was Nurse Jane returning from the store. And, all of a sudden, the bunny jumped and cried: "Boo!"

"Oh, bless my tail!" howled the surprised Fox. "I didn't know that was a live snow man Sammie made!" and away ran the Fox as fast as he could go.

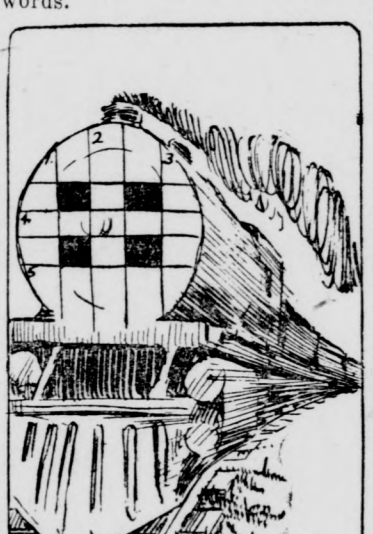

"And I didn't know that was a Fox!" I thought it was Nurse Jane," said Uncle Wiggily, shaking some snow out of his pockets. "Anyhow, it was better to scare the Fox than to scare Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy." And Nurse Jane, hearing what had happened, said the same thing.

But if the stick of candy doesn't tear a leaf out of the story book and try to make it grow on the rubber plant, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's rocking sled.

Diet And Health

By LULU HUNT PETERS, M. D.

ANSWERS TO CORRESPONDENTS

A Rest From Reducing
"Dear Dr. Peters: I am sending ten cents in stamps and a self-addressed, stamped envelope. Will you please send me another booklet on 'How to Reduce?' I have worn mine out from handling and would as soon be without a shoe as without your wonderful booklet."
"I weighed 225 (!) to begin with. I now weigh 181, a loss of 44 pounds, and will reduce to 157. It isn't as easy now as it was at first. I watch your wonderful column closely and know why—H. C."

One of the reasons it is not easy to reduce after a reduction as large as yours, is that with the decidedly improved appearance that such a loss brings, a part of the incentive to reduce is gone. We are not quite so conscious of ourselves, and every once in a while we have a food debauch and undo in one day what it has taken a week to do.

It is generally considered that after a loss of 40 pounds or so, it is better to go on the maintenance diet for two or three weeks and hold the weight. It is not necessary to gain. I have had quite a number of letters from those who have reduced more than 40 pounds (one follower reduced 100 pounds) who have not observed that resting period and who have felt no ill effects. However, I believe it is better to discontinue training for a while and then start in the same as you did in the first place—on a three-day liquid or semi-liquid diet, not amounting to over 600 to 700 calories a day.

Are you including some good, vigorous exercise in your reducing regime, Mrs. C? You should. Thank you for writing.

Swollen Joints

Mrs. D.—The cause of enlarged and swollen finger joints in many cases is obscure, but you have to consider abscesses at the roots of the teeth, decayed teeth, abscessed tonsils, diseased nasal sinuses and other spots of infection in the body which may be supplying infections. You also have to consider auto-intoxication from absorption of putrefactive products in the intestines, and deficient diets.

We know from experiments on animals that serous membranes (membranes covering joints, lungs, etcetera), and mucous membranes can be affected by a diet that is deficient in mineral elements and vitamins. Cases of this type of joint trouble have been cured by going on an exclusive fruit diet, or a combination of fruit at one meal and raw vegetables at another, for three or four weeks. After that, a balanced diet not very high in meat protein.

Because the advice has been to cut out all meats and high protein foods, sometimes patients go to the extreme and get too much starch and sugar, which only aggravate the condition. In these cases, the starches and sugars should be cut down and more of the protein foods substituted. Direct sunshine on the joints or some of the therapeutic artificial light, quartz rays, etcetera, may be helpful. Are you under the care of a physician? You should be.

TIC
Mrs. A. J.—"Tic" is an involuntary twitching of the muscles of the face and neck or arms and shoulders. It differs from chorea, or St. Vitus' Dance, in that the movements in this disease are never performed twice the same way, and are continuous while those afflicted with Tic always perform the same movement in the same way, and they are not continuous.

According to Tic, there is no medication that seems to help Tic but exercises, including relaxation exercises, and special breathing exercises; correct diet and hygienic living, are helps. In many cases, psycho-analysis has proven helpful.

Too much thinking of the movements and trying to stop them sometimes makes the patient worse.

Tomorrow: Answers to Mothers.

My Dear Followers:—When sending for material which we offer you please remember to enclose a stamped envelope bearing your full name and address. The pamphlet on reducing and eating is the only one for which you must enclose four cents in stamps extra. Address your letters to the Beauty Editor, 117 North Brand Blvd., Glendale, California. Please sign your name as evidence of good faith—we will not use it in any way. Remember, it is impossible for me to diagnose for you or to answer you personally. I appreciate very much the beautiful letters you send me and regret it is impossible to give you individual advice. The questions you ask will be answered in the column as soon as possible; if they are of general interest, I will send you the information I have offered.

A NEW ECZEMA CURE

Physicians in one of the New York hospitals believe that they have found a new cure for eczema. It came out publicly when the cure of the so-called "blue man" was announced. The man suffered from an affliction which gave the peeling scales of the skin a bluish shade. He was treated by a new method with the ultra-violet ray, which has been piling up a list of cures of the more ordinary forms of eczema.

The method is to soak the body all over in a strong salt solution, then expose it to the ultra-violet irradiation, as they call it. These rays are the same as that part of sunlight which causes both sunburn and sunstroke. The man who led them to try salt water and the irradiation had reported that when he took a sea bath and lay until burned on the beach, the skin under the peeled skin was healthy and eczema did not return for many months.

The theory put forward at present is that sea water being a mixture of sodium and chlorine in water and chlorine being a strong antiseptic, the rays release the chlorine to do their cleansing work more effectively. But the whole thing is still so new that doctors don't like to talk about it positively until they have proved that in every case of eczema, this combination makes a cure.

So if you have eczema or a tendency toward it and cannot afford this treatment, or if your doctor wants to wait until the cure is quite proved at the hospital, try this.

LEONARD TO MEET WALKER IN RING

Offer of $200,000 For Bout Will Draw Benny Back Experts Believe

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Benny Leonard has not fought his last fight, regardless of his signed statement to that effect, a statement in which pathos and mother love ran along on a high octave. This declaration was made today by close friends who split no infinitives in declaring the retiring young man would be seen in a local ring next summer for one last shot at the big, important money. The occasion, they said, would bring Leonard and Mickey Walker together in their long-deferred battle for the welterweight title and that Benjamin would be recompensed thereby to the matter of $200,000.

Parental objection to the so-called engagement, it is said, will be overcome by the size of the reward, although it is believed generally that the Leonard fortunes are not in immediate need of repair. Still, according to Benny's friends, he is not the rich man that popular fancy would have him. It is intimated that the Wall Street sharpshooters have scored several bulls-eyes and that Benjamin's roll has afforded an excellent target.

Benny Sincere
"Benny was entirely sincere when he retired from the light weight title," one of his local intimates declared. "He knows he cannot make the weight and he is strong. He knows also that his mother seriously objects to his continuing in the fighting game indefinitely. But she can be won over. Benny has had to do it for other fights and he can do it again. There is entirely too much money for him in a Walker match to be left lying around idle."

Which is not without a modicum of truth. If Leonard can get $200,000 for his end, and there is plenty of loose money which says he can, it would smack of fistie heresy for him to refuse. For less than an hour's activity in the ring, he can thus make more money than in a year and a half on the vendible side, provided theatrical audiences continued to evince sufficient interest in his act.

If Leonard remains out of the ring long enough, he will become merely a bright young man trying to get along, which vandyville has all too many. That $200,000-a-week thing will not go on forever unless Benny is as good an actor as he is a fighter, which is a point that is open to reasonable doubt.

Talkers' Compartment Asked by English Dean

LONDON, Feb. 19.—American traveling salesmen who glory in smoking compartment chats on train journeys would have a hard time in England, say some out of life. The Englishman is a solitary person, not at all chatty. He rarely wants to talk to anyone he doesn't know and he hates chance acquaintances who insist upon talking in trains. Dean Inge wants the railroad companies to take steps to suppress train talkers.

For Catarrh and Colds

To relieve catarrh or check a head cold, melt a little Vicks in a spoon and inhale the vapors of Camphor, Menthol, Eucalyptus, Thyme and Turpentine. Also put a little in each nostril and snuff well back up the head. Another way is to heat a tin cup, put in a teaspoonful of Vicks and inhale the vapors that way. As fast as the vapors lose their strength, throw out the melted Vicks and add fresh. Millions of mothers find Vicks the ideal remedy for croup and children's colds because it not only brings quick relief but avoids dosing delicate little stomachs with so much medicine.

JOHN B. FOSTER'S VIEWS

By Special Leased Wire to The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1923
NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Official records show that Walter Johnson, veteran pitching star of the Washington Americans, was the only American league pitcher who won six games from any other one club in 1924. Johnson achieved this against the Athletics.

If that showed nothing else, it would give a good line on the rivalry in the American league circuit in 1924 and help explain why it was that the championship winning percentage hovered all season around the 600 mark. Washington finally winning out with .597.

But it shows more. It shows that in many respects Johnson was going as well last season as he ever did in his life. That he would collapse in the season to come hardly seems probable in view of his performance right up to the close of last season. And there is little doubt that he will appear with the Senators the coming season, despite reports printed here that he is now among the ranks of Senatorial holdouts.

There was no top-heavy star in the American league pitching department last season, and Johnson for that reason really deserves the greater credit because he was forced to fight his way along in a race that did not possess a man who could win four-fifths of his games with any certainty.

There were six pitchers who won five games each from some one club. That is something of a record in itself. Thurston of the White Sox won five from St. Louis; Zachary of Washington, five from Chicago; Whitehill of Detroit won five from the Yankees; Pennock of the Yankees, won five from Chicago and five from Philadelphia; Shawkey of the Yankees won five from Boston; Shocker of the Browns, won five from Chicago; and lost five to the Yankees. That however, did not prevent the Yankees from grabbing the chance to add him to their pitching staff. New York figures that it has got the best pitcher in the league for 1925 in Shocker, but there are some who in St. Louis who doubt this. At any rate, the Yankees appear to have made a pretty good bargain.

These five or more victory pitchers had a great deal to do with the winning of the 1924 tail-end. Chicago, which finished last, was beaten in braces of five games by three pitchers—Pennock, Zachary and Shocker. As two of the trio were southpaws, that shows that the Sox as constituted last season were not an overly successful team against left-handers. This is borne out by other facts.

Another fact which is demonstrated in part by the winning of these games is that the American league is just as likely to run a close race in 1925 as it did in 1924, because the half dozen pitchers mentioned have merit and there are not six other pitchers who show any indication of developing into "phenoms" between now and the end of another season.

If the junior circuit has a pitcher who can go faster than those who did the bulk of the work last season, he will have to emerge from the "kids" who are starting in this year. There is no prospect of a freak run of luck falling to the lot of any of the veterans.

Of the high-run pitchers here discussed, probably Thurston got the most satisfaction in running off his string of five wins over St. Louis. The reason is that St. Louis traded him to Chicago, glad to get rid of him and thinking Thurston would be lucky to keep himself out of the minor leagues for long. Which was one more managerial miscalculation.

KELSO, Cal., Feb. 19.—Unless effective means are found to control the shifting sands of the Mojave Desert, this town will be buried under fifty feet of sand within five years, it is estimated. A huge dune, half a mile square, has been moving toward Kelso for three years and threatens to engulf the entire town.

The fleaweight title in the Central league is being decided this afternoon at South Pasadena, where the Glendale 110-pounders are playing the Alhambra team. Glendale defeated Alhambra in the opening game of the Central league.

SPORT CHATTER

By DAVIS J. WALSH

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Harry Williams drew the "color line" on Tom Gibbons after indulging himself in the annual formality of posting his $2,500 check with the State Athletic commission to bind another challenge to Jack Dempsey and couldn't win. I don't see why I should be going around meeting the losers. I took on Firpo and beat him easily. All I got out of it was a lot of abuse.

Now, they want me to meet Gibbons in order to qualify for a match with Dempsey. If I haven't qualified already, I'd like to know who has. A few claim Williams is nearer his title shot than ever before. The one that may be a matter for careful estimate is the "pipe" of the champion. Yet those who make this statement are of what might be termed the outer inner circle of boxing politics. In other words, just close enough possibly to have heard the faint echo of official sentiment toward the prospect.

They claim that the State Athletic commission is favorably disposed toward the proposition, in spite of Chairman Brower's guarded reply to Mullins yesterday that the board would "take the challenge under consideration," meaning nothing.

Ostensibly Williams' objection to a Gibbons meeting will throw Rickard and his announced plans for the outdoor season for a ten yard loss behind the line scrimmage. Rickard, it will interfere with them hardly at all. Rickard's real interest lies in another meeting between Gibbons and Dempsey in the background.

Meanwhile, in training for the Poughkeepsie event in June, Rusty Callow, the coach, believes that his right will be in for stern competition from more crews than Washington has experienced since he has rowed upon the Hudson.

He thinks that Pennsylvania, the Navy and Columbia will all be dangerous. He does not appear to be worried over the California regatta in April and the unannounced four mile route which the Hudson does not seem to be causing him any worry.

World Now Confronted With Prune Shortage

SACRAMENTO, Feb. 19.—With the 1923 crop actually consumed and seventy per cent of the 1924 pack in the hands of jobbers, the world market is confronted with the greatest shortage of prunes ever known, according to Sherman A. Reynolds, local packer, in an address before the Rotary club.

"France last year took twice as much dried fruit as was absorbed by the entire world in 1923," said the speaker. Despite this prospective demand, Reynolds said he did not look for any sharp advance in prices. Packages today in retail stores are smaller, containing two, three or five pounds of fruit.

LAWRENCE PERRY SAYS

Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1923
NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Wisconsin and California crews are considering invitations from the University of Washington to row a regatta on Lake Washington at Seattle next July.

If Washington thought there were any possibility of acceptance she would invite eastern crews but in the main the idea is to consolidate the western intercollegiate rowing association which was organized in rather a tentative way last year.

Within the next ten years Washington rowing authorities are certain that this association will include Stanford, Ohio State, Michigan and Minnesota, in addition to the present members, viz: Washington, California and Wisconsin.

But at present with its small membership the association now contemplates the unification of the efforts of the western crews at Poughkeepsie and a possible exchange of regattas between the middle west and the Pacific coast.

It is not likely that Poughkeepsie will be dropped by the western crews, at least not until a western regatta has developed that will vie with the Hudson river affair in point of importance.

With respect to the projected regatta on Lake Washington next July every effort will be made in its behalf, since the week in which it is intended to hold the race will be an important one in the Seattle calendar.

The Knights Templar convalesce now, they want me to meet Gibbons in order to qualify for a match with Dempsey. If I haven't qualified already, I'd like to know who has. A few claim Williams is nearer his title shot than ever before.

It will thus be seen that an intercollegiate regatta occurring within this time would give Seattle and the University of Washington about the biggest week in the annals of either.

Meanwhile, in training for the Poughkeepsie event in June, Rusty Callow, the coach, believes that his right will be in for stern competition from more crews than Washington has experienced since he has rowed upon the Hudson.

He thinks that Pennsylvania, the Navy and Columbia will all be dangerous. He does not appear to be worried over the California regatta in April and the unannounced four mile route which the Hudson does not seem to be causing him any worry.

BASKETBALL RESULTS

Starting the fourth quarter with the score tied 20 all, the Glendale DeMolay team not only kept the Glendale DeMolay team of Covina from locating the basket but ran up ten points to win the game, 30 to 20. Neel, who went in at forward and later shifted to center, starred for the locals, getting 15 points.

The game was played at the Harvard High school gym. Covina took the lead early in the first quarter and at half time was leading 13 to 5. Glendale scored 12 points in the third quarter while Covina made seven. The lineups:

Substitutions—Neel (15) for Calvert, Wilson for Pomeroy; Riley for Miller, Higgins for Avard.

The Merchants' league game between the Radios and Standard Oils, scheduled for last night, was postponed on account of the DeMolay game on the gym floor. No date has been set for the game to be played, but it will have to be played before March 2, when the second round starts.

The Los Angeles Teachers' team defeated the Glendale Faculty Five last night at the Harvard High school gym. Reports differ as to the results, but it was learned on good authority the score stood 50 to 1 at half time, in favor of the visiting teachers. It was rumored the final score was 87 to 12.

On tonight's menu will be the Radios and Legion. The Legion is standing in fifth place while the Radios are in second place with a good chance to tie the Hull Trucks for first. The game will be played at the Harvard High school gym and is a Merchants' league game.

PEACE REIGNS IN BIG-THREE SPORTS

California, Stanford, U. S. C. Settle Trouble And Patch Up Break

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 19.—Peace reigns once more in California university sport circles. Climaxing secret negotiations under way for some time, representatives of the University of California, Stanford university and University of Southern California met behind closed doors here last night and patched up the break between the two northern institutions and the southern school.

Immediate resumption of athletic competition was decided on. Stanford and Southern California will likely meet on the track this spring and may meet on the football gridiron this fall. California and Southern California schedules already arranged preclude the two institutions meeting in 1925, but the following year competition in all branches of sport will be arranged.

Faculty control of scholastic requirements and eligibility rules at all three institutions was emphasized in the official statement issued at the close of the "pipe of peace" meeting. It is said the disposition of the so-called Martin case by dropping of the student aided in paving the way to resumption of athletic relations.

H. J. Stonier represented University of Southern California; Dean Joel H. Hildebrand, University of California and Edward A. Cottrell, Stanford university, in the final negotiations.

RINGSIDE GOSSIP BY FAIR PLAY

Special Correspondent of The Glendale Evening News, Copyright, 1923
NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Frank Flounoy, who arranges matches for Tex Rickard and his backers thinks that Jack Delaney is still a first-rate drawing card and like the forceful man he is comes out and says so.

"What I am trying to do," said Frank, "is to put Jack into the ring for the full fifteen round fight with the best middle or lightweight that can be found. Young Stribling is the man I am after."

There is no doubt at all that a bout between Delaney and Stribling would fill the Garden. In all likelihood there would be a great exodus from Atlanta and adjacent parts of fans eager to see this bout's one of those "Broadway specials," which Georgia rollers charter when Tech plays football up this way.

For one thing a fight of the sort would give southern enthusiasts as much of a line on Stribling and Flowers as they are likely to get.

Lines never mean very much but they do afford a lot of talking points as the salesmen say. Delaney stowed Flowers away in the second round. Delaney and Stribling don't have to meet to establish the fact that the French Canuck would not put Stribling out in two rounds. A bet that William Lawrence would be sufficiently clever to protect his jaw for many, many rounds, if not throughout the fight, would be one of the best bets of the season.

Flounoy says that if Stribling is not tempted by the bait he will ask him to hop into the ring against Slattery of Buffalo. Jimmy outpointed Stribling in Buffalo some time ago and they say that the youngster from Dixie is anxious for revenge.

Detroit promoters seem to be actually anxious to pay Luis Firpo a large sum for fighting some good heavyweight, preferably Tommy Gibbons. They have offered him $50,000 with a chance of getting in on a percentage which might pull his earnings up to $90,000.

Firpo has replied to the offer in a spiritless manner, and it has given the Detroit syndicate an impression he is unattracted by the financial proposition. Of course that is not the reason. Luis is simply stunned. It is too good to be true in his opinion and so he is proceeding carefully, fearful that some one will hit him on the soles of his feet with a night stick and wake him up.

But the bid seems to be a serious one and if Luis passes up this opportunity for a comeback it will be because most of the fat he has been collecting this year has gone to his head.

Automatic telephones in Christiania, Norway, now number twenty thousand.

Eddie Kane Frowns on No-Decision Contest

CHICAGO, Feb. 19.—Tommy Gibbons will not meet Jack Dempsey in a no-decision bout, Eddie Kane, the St. Paul battler's manager, said today. Kane said a number of bids had been received from all parts of the country, but they were proceeding slowly in order to select the best proposition.

"There has been a lot of talk of a no-decision bout to be held in California," said Kane. "We have been offered several terms for such a bout but are paying no attention to them. If the fight is put on in that state, it will not be a 12-round, no-decision contest, but a genuine ten-rounder to a decision. Just set down as bunk any coast reports that Tommy has signed for a Los Angeles go. Nothing definite has been done except to consider bids, and we are doing that carefully."

'PING' DROPS SUIT

Seeks Permission To Start Game Preserve

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 19.—With African big game hunters arrayed against protesting members of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, State Corporation Commissioner Edwin M. Daugherty has opened a public hearing of the application of the Pacific Coast Sportsmen's club for permission to sell $4,000,000 in memberships. Promoting a 50,000 acre wild game preserve in the mountains between Caliente and Tehachapi in Kern county, is the objective.

The club proposes to sell 4,000 memberships at $1,000 apiece, to import $900,000 worth of animals and wild fowl, and to place a 12-foot fence around 52 miles of country. Within would be African lions, bear, elk, quail, wild boars, leopards and other species. A golf course, polo grounds and club house are also proposed.

Rides Decorated Wheel

Girl riders will play a prominent part in the Safety First Bike Carnival Saturday on Harvard High School grounds. Here is shown a prize-winning bike ridden by a girl.

The good old faithful bicycle is expected Saturday to occupy a commanding place in Glendale, when a real enthusiastic bicycle parade will be staged. That it surely will be ushered back into its rightful heritage with much gusto is evidenced by the fine array of prizes gathered to serve as a magnet to draw into the event every cyclist from miles around. The prizes range from a large attractive silver loving cup down to the useful bicycle bell, with a couple of gold watches included.

The parade and subsequent rally of cyclists has been arranged by the local bicycle dealers in co-operation with the Cycle Trades of America, of New York, and will start and finish on the grounds of the Harvard High school.

It will be a combined sociable bicycle ride and decorated wheel parade and is open to all who have bicycles and can ride them. It will be open to everyone.

Fred St. Onge, a nationally known cyclist, will be in charge of the event. He has been associated with cycling from its infancy and has the distinction of teaching the art to Helen Keller, famous blind deaf mute, whose accomplishments have caused thousands to marvel.

St. Onge travels all over the country preaching the gospel of good cycling, educating young folks into the proper way to ride a bicycle for health and pleasure.

and giving demonstrations in correct cycling as well as talks on road deportment. All these will be given at the end of the parade Saturday.

The parade will have its start and end at Harvard High school, through the courtesy of the high school trustees. Here the prizes will be given to the riders in different classes, such as riders with decorated wheels, Boy Scouts in uniform, and the schools with the greatest number of riders in line.

As a concluding feature to the bicycle rally, riding on a plank 150 feet long 5 inches wide and one inch high a novel and exciting event, will take place in which all riders may compete with perfect safety. Three prizes will be given for the best performances on the plank. The first will be a gold watch.

The only racing event on the program is for scooter chasers. This will be at 50 yards with three prizes to the winners. It is open to all youngsters with scooters. There is no charge for anything. Seats in the stands are free to spectators. Acadia and Pacific schools were visited by Mr. St. Onge on Wednesday. Other schools will be visited during the balance of the week. From present indications the carnival Saturday will bring out hundreds of riders and many spectators. The starting time is 10:30 o'clock and Harvard school grounds the place.

SAN BERNARDINO ORANGE SHOW SET

Governor, Public Officials
To Open Fifteenth
Annual Tonight

SAN BERNARDINO, Feb. 19.—Governor Friend William Richardson will formally open the Fifteenth National Orange Show tonight after dedicating the magnificent new home of the orange show to the citrus industry. Scores of state, county and city officials, representatives of railroads and fruit organizations will be present to assist in the ceremonies.

The greatest orange show in the fifteen years of the organization is promised. There are more feature displays than ever before, more rack displays, more industrial and automobile exhibits. So great has been the demand for space the late comers could not be served.

Greatest Exposition

The most beautiful exposition of all is the verdict of those who have been privileged to view the interior of the great fruit section. The magnificent decorations, the ten million oranges, exhibits in motion, music and song all lend themselves to a delightful symphony.

There are innovations that make the fifteenth anniversary show so far ahead of all other shows that there is no comparison. The old tented city is gone and in its place is a building more than two city blocks in length. It is worth a trip to San Bernardino to see this building and its Venetian interior even though the fruit department were the only attraction.

Auto Exhibits

The automobile, industrial and by-products departments are filled to overflowing with exhibits. The department of citrus education provides for an educational feature and the amusement zone provides for those who desire gaiety.

The best bands and orchestras in the southland, Mme. Mathildita's Venetian ballet, singers and many other entertainers are on the program. A dozen excursions from as many cities are planned during the ten days of the show. San Bernardino expects last year's attendance record of 250,000 to be shattered during the present great citrus classic.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 19.—California school children are to be invited to compete again in a national essay contest by the American Legion.

According to an announcement from James K. Fisk, state adjutant of the legion, $1500 in scholarships in the various colleges and schools of the country, has been set aside by the national headquarters of the organization for an essay contest on "Why Has the American Legion, An Organization of Veterans of the World War, Dedicated Itself, First of All, To Uphold and Defend the Constitution of the United States of America?"

The contest will end June 1, and students between the ages of 12 and 18 are eligible. Silver and bronze medals and certificates of merit will also be given the winners.

Superintendent of Public Instruction Will C. Wood and the various school superintendents have been asked to co-operate in the conduct of the essay contest. More than 362,000 children participated in last year's American Legion essay contest. The United States veterans' bureau hospital at Palo Alto has been designated by the government as one of the four institutions in the country where World war veterans addicted to the use of narcotics will be given treatment, according to Walter Garrison of Lodi, chairman of the legion's state welfare committee. The veterans' bureau is now mapping out plans for a special course of instruction to be given by Dr. Lambert of New York city, to physicians and staffs of the hospitals named so that they may thoroughly acquainted with the Foxwell-Lambert treatment for morphism and its administration.

The state executive committee of the American Legion is to meet at Sacramento, February 28, to discuss pending legislation affecting the veterans which is now before the state legislature. The committee will also discuss plans for the next annual convention of the legion to be held September 15, at Catalina and for the Omaha national convention in October. Representatives from the various legion districts will be heard by the committee.

As the California members of the honorary committee headed by President Coolidge for the veterans and child's welfare committee of the $5,000,000 American Legion endowment fund, Mrs. Alma de Bretteville Spreckels, of San Francisco, and William Gibbs McAdoo, former secretary of the treasury, of Los Angeles have been named by State Commander Nathan F. Coombs.

Mrs. Spreckels, widow of the late A. B. Spreckels, San Francisco millionaire and donor with her husband of the Legion of Honor war memorial in this city, and former Secretary McAdoo were named because of their interest in American Legion activities and

AT VERDUGO CITY

VERDUGO CITY, Feb. 19.—Emil Busch is dead. A little over six years ago Mr. Busch jumped into a river to save a fellow man from drowning. As an indirect result of exposure suffered by him in his successful attempt to save another life Mr. Busch died Monday.

For the past six years Mr. Busch has been a well known figure in La Crescenta valley, where until a few months ago he conducted a most successful chicken ranch, where every one came to him with their poultry troubles, knowing cheerful advice would be given. After giving up the ranch Mr. Busch built three houses where the yards of his farm were. When the Verdugo City Postoffice was opened a short time ago Emil Busch as postmaster welcomed his friends as they came to wish him success. A valued member of the Verdugo City Association of Commerce, Mr. Busch will be missed by his associates who loved him for his kindly spirit and gentle manner.

Mr. Busch would have been thirty-nine years old today. Instead of the jolly party planned to celebrate the event, his friends will attend his funeral which is to be held at the Little Church of the Flowers at one o'clock today. None of the family of the deceased or his widow will be able to be present. Mrs. Busch with her daughter Edith will be the guest of the Harry N. Fowler until after the funeral.

TUJUNGA NOTES

TUJUNGA, Feb. 19.—A patriotic program was held by the Tujunga Woman's club at the last meeting in honor of the birthday anniversary of Abraham Lincoln. Mrs. Lillian Wheeler read a paper on the life of Lincoln and several others made brief speeches relative to the same subject. The program also included vocal selections by the Girls' Glee club of the Tujunga school, directed by Miss Osborn.

Harmony has so far marked the efforts of certain owners of Verdugo Hills land to have portions of the hills annexed to the city of Glendale for the purpose of building a ski line drive, from that city along the crest of the hills to Sunland to join there with the state highway to San Fernando. The plans of the promoters of this project have not been permitted to interfere with pending incorporation movements in Tujunga and Sunland. The lines of the territory which it is proposed to annex to Glendale include part of Hillhaven, the hillside residence section of Tujunga now being exploited by Twining & Myers, realtors of Glendale. The plan is to build a scenic drive that will open for development one of the best tracts of hill land in Southern California, which it is believed will outclass the Hollywood hills in time if developed properly. The proponents of the annexation plan believe it to be the most propitious since, by following this method, a road bonding district could be formed.

Wednesday, February 18 will be Visitors' Day at the Tujunga school. Visitors may have lunch with the pupils at the school cafeteria and spend the afternoon visiting classes, it has been announced.

Mrs. M. C. Darwin has returned from a trip to New York, visiting several friends en route. Stops included in the visiting itinerary were: Lawrenceville, N. J., Philadelphia, where she was the guest of Mrs. T. B. Constane; Washington, Pittsburgh, Anderson, Ind., Long Cliff, where Mrs. Darwin was the guest of a former Tujunguan, Dr. Hankins; Burlington, Iowa; Emporia, Kans.

Mr. and Mrs. H. P. Nelson recently entertained Mr. and Mrs. George Walker and small daughter and Jack Henton. Mrs. Lola Begue and Mrs. Viola Claire have bought the Tujunga cafe on Michigan avenue. The new management plans to operate a Spanish kitchen.

Among the out of town people who visited Tujunga friends Sunday were: Mr. and Mrs. Al Moore and R. E. Moore, Redondo Beach; Mrs. Eliza Rugg and two daughters, Leslie and Doris; Jack Dewler, Glendale; Walden Fink, La Verne.

JUMPER DRESS

MIAMI, Feb. 19.—There is a thoroughly disappointed horseman at Hialeah park today. He heard an obviously wealthy woman in the paddock say: "I've simply got to buy another jumper." He tried to sell her a broken-down steeple-chaser from his string, and found what she intended to buy was a jumper dress of the lightweight kasha jersey which so many women are wearing here, with a boyish collar and kick pleat skirt,

KANSAS CATTLE

TOPEKA, Feb. 19.—Kansas farmers now own $130,000,000 worth of cattle, hogs and sheep, according to state board of agriculture. This is about the same total as last year, although the number of hogs has decreased 20 per cent and beef cattle 2 per cent. Milk cows gained 4 per cent and sheep 5 per cent.

YELLOW PLUS GREEN

PARIS, Feb. 19.—Yellow and green form a favorite color combination for ensembles at present. For example, a yellow kasha skirt is topped by a knitted jumper and a scarf of honey tint. Above these is worn a cheviot coat of Chartreuse green trimmed with beaver.

of Giving Better Health Through Radium Water

Southern Pacific Company (Pacific System) Truckee, October 1, 1924. Through our mutual friend Walley Gelett, I learn that you can furnish me with the address of the people who distribute the Radio-Active Water or Jug. Having known Walley for a period of years and witnessed some of his suffering, I am convinced that he has enjoyed considerable improvement from taking this treatment and would like to avail myself of it like change in health. Walley's health means more to our community than anything else I know, while my desire is based strictly upon selfish reasons for my own well being. Would appreciate, when convenient to you, any information which would put me in touch with this concern. Very truly yours, WILBURN MAYNARD, (Manager of S. P. Hotel, Truckee, Calif.)

Los Angeles, Calif., Aug. 27, 1924. I have been using a Radium Ore Lined Jar, and been drinking Radio-Active Water for one month. ### GIRLS DISAPPEAR

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—A search of the Chinese quarters of Chicago, San Francisco and Los Angeles has been requested of police of those cities by authorities in Chinatown for two Brooklyn high school girls they believe have been abducted by Orientals. The girls are Anna Brazaitis, 18, and Mary Levskis, 17, both pretty musicians.

JIG-SAW ELIMINATED

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—The jig-saw mode of decoration which was reminiscent of middle west mansions of the early nineties, is fast disappearing from women's shoes. Adornment is now being confined to contrast of coloring.
